HEROES VS. VILLAINS!

PLAY BINGO!

Play our version and win fun prizes!

Pick up your card at the Manager's Table (Z7) in the Vendor Hall or Guest Services.

Each square of your bingo game card has a superhero or villain! There are many bingo boards, so you're not likely to find someone else with the same clues in the same squares - making it even more fun to play with friends.

Keep your eyes peeled and keep your magnifying glass out and ready: Somewhere among the Vendor, Fan table, and Artist Alley booths, you will find different bingo square character names hung up on in their booth.

Have the vendor stamp your bingo card when you find the matching topic.

BINGO!!! When you've filled out your card, trade it in at the Manager's Table (Z7) for your prize!

OUR COMMUNITY PARTNER

Friends, acquaintances, and friends I've not yet met, lend me your eye for a moment while I discuss our community partner for the year: The Comic Bookmobile!

Frank Powers, your best Frank forever and mine, started The Comic Bookmobile with a specific goal in mind: bring comics into kids' lives! But, in Frank's words, "Comics" are more than superheroes in span-dex. It's sequential art. It's Comic panels like Farside and Comic Strips like Peanuts. It's independent comics that tell a story of growing up, or a personal battle with cancer. I tell people all the time that "COMICS ARE BOOKS!" but most people don't realize that the reverse is true and that Books are comics.

Have you read Shakespeare, or maybe TRIED reading it? It can be a little tough with the language, so a little sequential art goes a long way to help retell history's greatest plays.

I would like to put the money raised toward creating The Comic Bookmobile's Literary Classics Comic Library. Not only do I want to introduce more folks to the artform itself but also expose them to the greatest literary masterworks of history through the medium of comics. Let's get these kids obsessed with the The Classics of Jules Verne!!

We here at Wild Wild West Con want to help Frank reach all his goals and all our community outreach fundraising this year will go directly to those goals!
